Ombudsman releases first Annual Report of new mandate

On Wednesday, November 2, Ombudsman Paul Dubé released his 2015-2016 Annual Report. The report reviews our Office's work over the last fiscal year and provides an update on significant developments in the subsequent six months. It is also the first annual report that includes our expanded jurisdiction of municipalities, universities and school boards.

Featuring a completely overhauled visual design, the report includes highlights from the 22,118 cases we received regarding the 1,000+ public sector bodies we now oversee, as well as updates on our proactive resolution of issues and our major

CLOSED MUNICIPAL MEETINGS

City of Niagara Falls

The Ombudsman found that the City of Niagara Falls violated open meeting requirements by voting systemic investigations.

Case Summary

“An inmate complained that he had sat in jail for days after becoming eligible for parole because a parole hearing had not been scheduled for him. He had signed a consent form to delay his hearing past his parole eligibility date, but said he had only done so because he was told the Parole Board was not available sooner. As a result of this case, the Parole Board eliminated the consent form, to ensure that hearings are held before an inmate’s eligibility date, as required by law.”

New help in wake of Ombudsman report: ReportON expansion

On November 16, the government of Ontario announced an expansion of ReportON, a telephone and email service to report actual or suspected neglect of adults with developmental disabilities. The move is part of the province's response to the Ombudsman's investigative report on services for adults with developmental disabilities who are in crisis, Nowhere to Turn, released August 24.

Among Ombudsman Paul Dubé's 60 recommendations - all of which were accepted - was that the Ministry of Community and Social Services develop an urgent response mechanism to help adults with developmental disabilities get help outside of regular business hours.

Since the release of our report, we have received some 67 new complaints regarding people with developmental disabilities who are in crisis; our staff continues to assist them and their families on a case-by-case basis.

OUTREACH

November was a month full of outreach and events, including an invitation to speak at the biennial International Ombudsman Institute World Conference, in Bangkok, Thailand. Ombudsman Paul Dubé gave a presentation on how our office has implemented its newly expanded jurisdiction. He was also acclaimed as the IOI's new Regional President for North America.

The Ombudsman also traveled to Ottawa and presented to the Forum of Canadian Ombudsmen on our office's recommendations for improving segregation practices in Ontario. In May, the Ombudsman recommended the province abolish indefinite segregation – you can read his submission to the Ministry of Community Safety and Correctional Services here.

Early in November, Deputy Ombudsman Barbara Finlay welcomed the Ohio Legislative Fellows to our office and explained had 1,058 school board complaints since September 1, 2015, and since January 1, 2016 we've received 2,995 complaints about municipalities and 218 about universities. Most of these cases have been resolved informally, usually through referral to local officials.

Recent cases

Universities

A student complained to our office and claimed two of his teeth had been damaged by a faulty dental bridge installed by his school's medicine and dentistry clinic. After Ombudsman staff contacted the school, the clinic investigated the concern and found his treatment was appropriate and not the cause of his damaged teeth. However, the school offered to cover the full cost of repairing the bridge under the condition of signing a release of liability, which the student refused. Since the student was interested in pursuing legal action, we suggested he seek legal advice.

School boards

A man working at a school complained to our office after being terminated from his position. He was dealing with the Ontario Labour Relations Board at the time about his termination as well as about his lack of union representation. Our staff provided referral information to the man and suggested he continue through the Ontario Labour Relations Board process.
